Course Participation:

Unlike a traditional, instructor-led course, you do not need to show up to a class at a specific time each day to earn your class participation grade. Instead, you need to make a daily effort to complete the Discussion Board posting in a timely manner and meet all deadlines as assigned by the instructor.

Online Etiquette:

The objective in an online discussion is to be collaborative, Not combative. Please proofread your responses carefully before you post them to ensure that they are Not offensive to others in this course. Use discussions to develop your skills in collaboration and teamwork. Treat the discussion area as a creative environment where you and your classmates can ask questions of each other, express opinions, revise opinions, and take positions just as you would in a more traditional classroom setting.

Academic Honesty:

Scholastic dishonesty shall constitute a violation of rules and regulations and is punishable as prescribed by board policies. Scholastic dishonesty shall include, but not be limited to, cheating on a test, plagiarism and collusion. Cheating on a test shall include: Copping from another student's test paper, Using test materials not authorized by a person administering the test or the test administrator, Collaborating with or seeking aid from another student during the test without permission from the administrator. The unauthorized transporting or removal, in whole or in part, of the contents of a test will be considered dishonest. Substituting for another student, or permitting another student to substitute for ones self, to take a test. Bribing another person to obtain an un-administered test or information about an un-administered test means another's work and the acknowledged submission or incorporation of it in one's written work. Postings

-- I would like for our discussions to be open and easy for all of us to understand so we can really talk to one another as if we are in class and face to face. Please make sure your postings are in your own words and target an audience that has no clue what you are talking about --- no clinical answers or answers from online or print resources. If someone else posts something and you don't really understand their comments, ask! That's the best way for everyone to learn. Let's have some FUN with this!

If you want to make sure you are not plagiarizing the answer, you may want to run it through <http://www.duplichecker.com/> . As you move forward in your education this is a valuable resource. There are others out there, but this is the one I used with my research proposal for my Masters and it never let me down. If you do need to use information you found online or in print, please cite (I'm not asking for a formal citation) where you found it. You might say... I found this on Wikipedia (keep in mind the info on this site is posted by everyday folks like you and me for the most part so it may not be as accurate as you hoped for). You might even say we discussed this in another one of my classes and Mr. X said.....
